The only person you should try to be better than is the person you were yesterday.

In my four years in Ateneo, I was able to be better, bolder, and braver than I thought I was four years ago. Now, after all the late nights, numerous org events, and a plethora of speed bumps along the way, as I come down from the hill, I can confidently say that I am ready to break down more walls and for what my future has in store for me.
