

Katherine Marice C. Cruz

For someone so small, Kat's heart makes up for whatever she lacks in size. Her distinct voice and laugh instantly make you feel welcome; her loyalty to friends is unending! Though she's developed a tendency to follow perfect schedules, in four years in the Ateneo, Kat has learned to embrace uncertainty and spontaneity. Be it hitchhiking on JTA or choosing a non-med track in a family of doctors, Kat radiates love and zest for life.

A common phrase I would always use in the Ateneo is, "you always learn something new everyday," whether it be a new lesson or a trend, discovering a trait of your friend or finding yourself, getting lost in unfamiliar parts of the campus or learning shortcuts to make your life easier. Life throws at us experiences which can help us get stronger and more knowledgeable so that we can all grow as people.
