

Giselle Louise R. Lapid

Grapefruit diets and exercise
Blithe attraction to crushes
Uplifting love and crushing loss
Kitsch patterns on blouses and crooked glasses
Passive/hostile forms of aggression
Sensitivity and empathy beyond comprehension
Tears of joy, anxiety, and exasperation
Once docile now establishing her beliefs
Standing up for herself and for others
Mere snippets of her life I witnessed throughout the 3 years of our friendship.
Like a phoenix, she emerges from her struggles better and stronger. (M. Tangco)

MINOR IN HISTORY

Leo Carlo R. Liay

I first approached Ateneo as another basic station of my nomadic life. “Everything flows” is what my motto always advocates me; Ateneo should too. And it did, quite abruptly. Flashes of 6 AM trainings, followed by sweaty, sticky, and tiresome classes vividly obfuscate my memoirs in the campus. However, I can clearly distinguish the people who made my stay in Ateneo worth living. You guys (too many to be mentioned here) were my anchor. Down the hill, I will eternally cherish those relationships.
