People waste a lot of time; and they wish for more – more hours in their days, days in their years, years in their lives; as if they have all that extra time, they could fix any mistake.

That's the thing with time – if you can't make the most out of every moment... Then you don't deserve a single extra second of it.

It's not how much time you have – it's how you use it. (Ekko, League of Legends)

From garish greens to buoyant blues, I find myself within a prism of opportunities. I don't know what's at the end of the rainbow, but what I do know is the sunlight that has grazed the facets of who I am. But as this sunlight descends and the darkness looms, I must not shudder at the uncertainty of the sky. I need to look up, for there is the twinkling of hope. I need to look up, for I must see the light that was always there.
