

MINOR IN LITERATURE IN ENGLISH

Nicole Angelica L. Gimenez

We were sitting in the back of the e-jeep, riding from BEG back to Leong, when I met the very intelligent and lively Nicole I know and love best. We talked about ambitions and dreams, obstacles and how she was going to face, deal, and conquer them. We also talked about how she is not alone, and will never be alone. And at the end of her college life, I pray she will always choose to remember how brave she really is, claim the life that is hers, and walk in the world waiting for her. (JKT)

MINOR IN CULTURAL HERITAGE

Maria Ana Gabriela R. Lising

In her freshman year I explained a lot: Green jokes, complex concepts, understated comments, even dealing with people. The lanky girl with the boy's cut, the lost look, the unsure step. But even then she was also the person of the big heart, a willingness to learn, to serve, to always go beyond herself. Now this graduating senior, my dear friend, has become the woman she was always meant to be, more confident as a leader, more patient with herself, and even closer to God. You go, bes. (JKT)
