I was eight years old when I first stepped into the campus. I didn't know much yet because I was a young and innocent kid who just wanted to play around. But, I already knew back then that I wanted to study in this university because I felt how great it was. Here I am now, living the dream that I had back when I was kid. But the thing about dreams is that they just don't come right away. Work hard, endure and persevere. This is for God, your neighbors, the people you love and certainly yourself.
