

Gabriel Brett A. Zambarrano

Sixteen years down the road and I've never been more spent, stressed, and exhausted. I've not been able to keep count of all the turned pages and emptied pens, but I still stand deeply indebted to Ateneo for bringing me to where I am today, and it brings me much sorrow to have to say goodbye. However, I am comforted in knowing that this only marks the beginning of my journey into a larger world, that I am stepping over cracked eggshells, pushed forward by a great blue eagle, before flying high.