Starting out college is like being lost under a dark sky; you won't know what to do or how to get to where you want to be. All you have is that hope of eventually finding yourself and being happy with what you find. You will make mistakes, regret and hurt — numerous times. At the same time you will love, learn and grow — a million times over. Through it all, hold on to that hope; it's all you need. Four years might not be enough, but you'll end up with a sky full of stars to help you see the way.

“We all think we're going to be great and we feel a little bit robbed when our expectations aren't met. But sometimes our expectations sell us short. Sometimes the expected simply pales in comparison to the unexpected. You got to wonder why we cling to our expectations, because the expected is just what keeps us steady... standing...still...The expected's just the beginning. The unexpected...is what changes our lives.” (Grey's Anatomy)
