

Martine Marie C. Lopa

Martie has a refreshingly candid personality that is sure to stand out in any crowd. Her infectious energy always makes her the life of the party. A brilliant writer, she is always able to translate her clever intellect into artfully-crafted discourse. Martie often credits her friends as some of her life's greatest prides. However, in reality, it is her utmost sincere friendship that is something to be treasured in itself as she exceeds all expectations of what it means to be a true friend.

Here's to the many paths and places I've walked these past four years, the people I have come across, the times spent celebrating every small victory I initially thought to be a failure. And most of all, here's to all the moments I asked myself what exactly I wanted to be in life. And here's to Ateneo, for opening my eyes to the world around me and for inspiring me to make difference.
