

Bianca Nichole A. Tan

I was a whole new person in college. It was very challenging and, well, different. I owe it to a lot of people – why I survived this chapter of my life. To my parents, thank you for continuously supporting me and loving me despite the many disappointments. To my siblings and cousins, thank you for being my source of laughter and comfort when things were rough for me. To the people whom I met in college and will forever treasure, Oli and Joelle, I love you guys more than you'll ever know.

MINOR IN PROJECT MANAGEMENT

Colin Joseph P. Tan

Cj Tan – your org mate that can incorporate work with fun, your group mate that would never let you do all the work, and your friend that has the capability to ease your heart and listen to every story you need to get off your chest. He experienced the highest of highs and the lowest of lows but jolted through with utmost gratitude. He took his strengths and weaknesses and turned them into excellence. Cj is truly someone you'd want in your life, and I am enamored that he was a part of mine.
