

MINOR IN ECONOMICS

Michaelben K. Yap

Life happens in barely susceptible increments—little moments that pass you by without you even noticing. It happens as you try new things, discover new places, and touch more souls. It happens quietly, until you discover that you are no longer just the person you were at the beginning. You are more.

I am the same person I was when I came in, only more so. Thank you, Ateneo, for helping me discover myself. It's been real.
