

Cassandra Nicole C. Venzon

Dear Ateneo, thank you for shaping me into someone better, stronger, and kinder. No single letter will ever be able to encompass the things I've learned here. Filled with pain and love, I've learned about the importance of perseverance and second chances. I learned that sometimes life seems to lead you astray, but you will always end up right where you should be.

TRACKS IN MANAGEMENT AND PSYCHOLOGY; MINOR IN SPANISH

Jose Antonio Guillermo Vilar

In my previous school, CSA Makati, we were always taught to be like St. Augustine, a man for all men. A similar adage holds true for Ateneans; we are taught to be men and women for others. To be a man or woman for others entails having a balanced, holistic view of the world; going beyond yourself, and what you know, in order to better serve others. As I leave the Ateneo, I know I leave as a better man; a man closer to being a true man for others, closer to being a true man for all men.