

Anthony B. Ong

He who inspires and lives in the moment. He never lets an opportunity pass! He may not be the smartest of Ateneans nor the most fashionable at that. But he has something that money can never buy – a heart of gold and a voice that encourages. He's someone who will push you to be the best person you can be. Throughout his stay in the Ateneo he has learned to know what it means to really communicate with people and balance commitments. Memories and companions he shall forever treasure and behold.

I'm forever indebted to the people who got me through these four long years. To my family, thanks for believing in me even when I seemed to have lost my way. To my true friends, your constant presence kept me going. College breezed by quickly, but I am beyond ecstatic to have gone through it with you. Amid the joys, woes, successes, and failures, Ateneo pushed me to become the best and realest version of myself. Thank you for the memories.
