During my junior year, I joined the JTA program, traveled to Europe, and eventually found myself standing atop the Swiss Alps. It was simply a pleasurable moment, a refuge from the city, the studies, and the issues that bothered me. Although my stay there lasted only a single breath or glance in comparison to my 4 years in Ateneo, I can still feel and smell the vigor, the energy, and the calmness today.

To my family and friends – good game, well played. Thanks for being there for me, always.

Four and a half years in college wasn't part of the plan, but college has taught me that sometimes life is more fun when you ditch the plan and go with the flow.
