No one to thank but myself.

Ralph Ryan A. Hebrío

From Sinag to Daong, and of the five years I spent in the Ateneo, I was exposed to various people coming from different walks of life. Each of these people taught me invaluable lessons not only for honing technical skills and balancing student organizations, but also for developing a simpler but wider life perspective and proper overall management. Because of these, I am eternally grateful. I will carry these lessons from this point on and try to teach others the same way these people taught me.
