

MINOR IN JAPANESE STUDIES

Eutteum Chae

Ateneo taught me to be authentic yet attentive, courageous yet cautious, logical yet loving, and persistent yet practical. Most importantly, Ateneo taught me to own my thoughts, words, and actions in life. Thank you professors, friends, and all the massive amount of readings for opening up my eyes so I could see the sun, moon, and stars. Also, a special thank you to dear Coke float who was always there for me to blow my stress away with its dark sweetness.

Joyce Bianca Y. Chuang

Do it. Do what scares you. Make mistakes. Chase the dream. These four years have taught me that I am possible as long as I keep fighting. Any failure along the way is only a discovery of what doesn't work in order to improve my next attempt. As I embark on my new beginning, I want to keep this with me. Let's face it – life doesn't get any easier. But it doesn't mean it has to lose the wonder, the excitement, the hope in possibilities that I felt when I first set sail towards the rest of my life.