College is more than its buildings, trees, and curriculum. It is the wonder of new knowledge. It is the friends that you laugh, fight, and cry with. It is love's promise and distrust of rejection. It is getting to know others and accidentally discovering yourself. It is living with the fear of an uncertain future and of the possibility of drowning. But most of all, it is anchoring your ship and the knowledge that you had the strength to go through the longest journey of your life so far.
