One of the greatest lessons I've learned during my days as a student in the Ateneo is to never be afraid of change. People come and go into our lives and things do not always go as planned. These changes may not make sense in the beginning, but it will in the end. With that being said, I am thankful for the changes that I have gone through in college for these have led me to my true passion, to real friends, and to the person I, myself, can be proud of.
